

ominious death under Pontus Pilate, that he descended into the grave, that he arose from thence and ascended into heaven and sat down at the right hand of his father, and that power in heaven and on earth is committed to him." But put this to the test, and what saith it? Doth it not say in contradiction to all this, that it is right for him to attend to the dictates of reason, which was implanted in his breast for noble purposes, which will not suffer him thus supinely to rest on the weak effeminate doctrine of non-resistance, and although he hath promised that not a hair of his head shall fall to the ground, he hath all power and is, in fact, Almighty, and that he never allows those who put their whole trust in him, yet reason teaches him (the warrior) that it would be absurd to place so much confidence in him as to expect deliverance in any other way than through his own interposition, and by the strength of his own arm. When his rights are invaded by the lawless tyrant, reason indicates that he is not only a better soldier, but much abler to save himself, than HE, the all-powerful possessor of the universe is to save him. He will rely on his providential aid and never failing promises in such an emergency. However harsh and unsmooth this doctrine may sound in the ear of the fighting christian, it must be admitted to be about the amount of his creed.

I am aware that it will be objected, that he will say he does not rely on his own strength alone, but he expects divine aid to co-operate with his own exertions in his cause of justice, and perhaps may add, that as his maker has put the means of preserving his life, liberty, and property within his reach, and self preservation is the first law of nature, it would not only be very safe for him to "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord," but he might be culpable for the abuse of those means with which he was invested. Would it be deemed appropriate in me to ask, if our Saviour and his disciples were not furnished with the same means for repelling the infringement of their rights? And did not our Saviour say when in a perilous situation that his Father would send him more than twelve legions of Angels, on his petition to that effect? Do we find that any of the primitive christians ever offered any resistance when their rights were invaded? or do we find any warrant in the new testament for such a proceeding? If the foregoing are incontrovertible truths, I would ask the christian warrior from what source he has attained his commission? and whether he has not greater reason to fear the frowns of the Prince of Peace for disobeying his mandates, than for the abuse of the means put in his power, by standing still? That is the case, there seems in my judgment no room to doubt, and that thousands of deluded creatures have witnessed his displeasure for presuming to engage in the dreadful catastrophe of war, not only without divine authority, but diametrically opposed to it. I have frequently deplored the dreadful consequences necessarily attendant on this sanguinary system, having been an eye-witness to some scenes within the vortex of war which, although comparatively small, were truly distressing, and would willingly have contributed my mite for its entire abolition; as I hold it to be the grand reservoir from which many of the smaller streams are fed. Slavery, with all its train of dismal horrors, owes its origin & continuance to the spirit of war; & as that the only calamity we had to deplore, it would be sufficient to stimulate us to use our utmost exertions consistent with christian rectitude to eradicate it. The evil in its present aspect, presents a front almost insurmountable, yet I have not altogether despaired that a happy result would crown its votaries with success, as every thing amicable in the christian character seems to be enlisted in favor of peace, harmony and in opposition to war, tyranny and hatred.

Variety.

This morning about 4 o'clock, says the Indiana Republican, 2 or 3 miles below this place, while the Steam Boat Eliza had stopped to take in wood, we are informed that the Velocipede, as she was going down, ran against the Eliza, tore off a considerable portion of her wheel house and passed on.—Cotton. A specimen of cotton from Illinois, said to be of the second quality raised there, has been forwarded to Baltimore. "It is beautifully white and fine, but a little shorter than the Louisiana," says the editor of the American Farmer.—Africa. The colony at Cape Mesurado is well reported of. Some of the people have lately returned for the purpose of taking out their families. This proceeding will, probably, induce others to emigrate.

Internal Improvement. No less than 14 vessels, of considerable burthen, the largest that navigate the upper lakes, were lying in Buffalo harbor on the 5th inst. More than as many hundred will soon annually arrive at or depart from that port.—Privatizing. An eastern paper gives the names of seven American vessels, recently captured by Spanish privateers, and condemned at Porto Cavello and Porto Rico, under the paper blockade of the Colombian coast.—The Fuller's Earth, lately discovered in New-York, is ascertained to possess all the desired qualities.—Flour has fallen in Baltimore to $6 12 and $6 25, Rye to 50 cents per bushel, Oats to 23 cents.—The frigate Macedonian just arrived at Norfolk from Havana, during her cruise, she has lost 77 of her crew, including 10 officers, and has 50 sick on board!—A serious difference appears to exist between France and Spain.—The amount of duties secured at the Custom House in the city of New York, for the first six months of the present year, ending on the 30th of June, was $5,244,815. 97-100.—The Theatre at Eatonton, Georgia, was destroyed by fire on the 10th inst.

—A fourth line of packet ships has been established between New York and Liverpool to sail from New York on the 8th of every month. There is now a regular packet every week from New York for Liverpool.—

At the session of the court of Common Pleas, says the Hamilton Advertiser, which adjourned on Saturday last, (17th inst.) John M. Cox and John Peoples, who were jointly indicted for horse stealing, were severally sentenced, the former to five years, and the latter to four years imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

—The Buffalo Journal of July 26, states that "Joseph Bonaparte, Ex-

King of Spain, passed through that village on his way to visit Niagara Falls.—Deaths in Washington city in July. Adults 10. Children 19, total 29, 10 were of Cholera morbus.

—Edward Livingston is elected to Congress from that district of Louisiana which includes New-Orleans.

—In Chester county, Penn. James

Smith, wheel-wright, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.—At Pendleton, S. C. Mrs.

Fanny Brock, in the absence of her husband, threw her daughter, about six years old, into a well, where she drowned. She then attempted to throw in her eldest son, but he made his escape. She finally shut herself up in the house, and hung herself.—Deaths in Charleston, from the 21st to the 23th July.—16.

—THE ARMY. The military affairs of the United States are separated into two departments, the eastern and western. The head-quarters of the gen. in chief, is the District of Columbia; of the Eastern, at Gouverneur's Island, N. Y. of the Western, at Louisville, Ken. The eastern department comprises all east of a line drawn from the southwesternmost point of Florida to the northwest extremity of Lake Superior; the western, all west of that line, taking in the whole of Kentucky and Tennessee, &c.—At Lancaster,

Penn. Andrew Sommerfield descended into a well to deepen it, and was suffocated by the noxious air in a few minutes.—Mrs. Ballou, of Norwich, committed suicide, by hanging herself.—Ellick Wildboy, a merry sailor, lately arrived from St.

Barts, was brought before the Mayor of Philadelphia for getting drunk.

"You know, sir," said Ellick, "bodies will drink too much by times. The best sailor in the world can't tell how the wind blows to-morrow. I know I steered too much to the leeward, but I couldn't help it. He was fined 5s.
